

Senior Tom Kenney Wins Notre Dame Scholarship

This is the first of a series of articles in reference to fellowships, assistantships and scholarships won by Loyola College graduates. In the past, these aids to graduates have been granted to Loyola seniors from many different universities.

Fellowship Committee

Students from Loyola owe much to the Loyola College Fellowship Committee made up of Dr. Hands, Dr. Gumnick, Dr. Boyle, and Mr. O'Donovan, S.J., and headed by Dr. Hands. This committee as recently as last week held its first student meeting in Ruzicka Hall, with Mr. Frank Moritz, Director of Admissions, speaking on "The Possibility of Graduate School." Today at 11:00 a.m. in Ruzicka Hall Mr. DiBiagio and Dr. Hands will speak on "Preparation for Graduate School." These brief talks are very informative and give ample time for the many questions interested students ask.

Recent Grants

Seventeen Loyola College graduates from the class of 1962 were offered a total of thirty-one fellowships, assistantships and various scholarships.

Needless to say, there is much opportunity for students with potential, and the purpose of the Fellowship Committee is to familiarize students with these opportunities, and doing a very good job of it.

Tom Kenney

Already these offers are being made to Loyola seniors of the Class of 1963. This series of articles will endeavor to report the offers as they are presented, together with a general history of the student's work at Loyola.

Three weeks ago, the postman dropped a letter into the mailbox at 2500 Erdman Avenue, the home of Thomas J. Kenney, Jr. from Notre Dame Law School. The contents were a grant of $4500 to be spent over the three year course as a scholarship. Tom spent his days at Loyola excelling (with a 3.4 cumulative quality point average) as a history major. Tom participated in many extra curricular activities at Evergreen, notably as Sports Editor of The Greyhound, Sports Editor of the "Evergreen Annual," President of Alpha Sigma Nu, President of the Classics Academy, Treasurer of the Block "L" Club and of his junior class. Tom is outstanding example of school spirit and thus is greatly deserving of his scholarship, and the entrance of his name in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

It is hoped that the accomplishments of previous fellowship winners will encourage the present underclassmen.

Keating's Paper To Be Read At AIRC Convention

Loyola College continues in its fine tradition of significant contribution to the consideration of problems of international affairs by the American collegiate community. Dr. Edward Davis, Professor of History at American International College at Springfield, Massachusetts, and Faculty Advisor for the Association of International Relations Clubs, has announced that a paper submitted by Dennis Keating, President of the International Relations Club of Loyola College, is one of a dozen accepted for consideration by the 1963 National Convention of the AIRC. The paper is entitled, "The Atlantic Community and the Soviet Bloc." This topic is one of four to be discussed by delegates from across the country, the other three being: "The Atlantic Community, the Political Aspect, The United States and the Common Market, and The Atlantic Community and the Underdeveloped Areas."

Edward Slawski, former President of Loyola International Relations Club, will represent Loyola College at this Convention. The Convention will be held at American International College in Springfield, March 27-30.

Fine Record

In the recent past Loyola has had a fine record of leadership in inter-collegiate activities relating to international affairs. In 1960 Mr. Thomas Curtis was chosen Chairman of the Mid-Atlantic Model General Assembly of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations. Mr. Slawski was elected Chairman of the Capitol District of the Mid-Atlantic Region of the AIRC for 1961-62, and Mr. Keating succeeded him in this post for 1962-63.

Tomorrow, Loyola will host a conference of the International Relations Clubs of the Capitol District. The Loyola I.R.C. will also conduct its second Great Decisions program next Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Lounge. The discussion topic will be, "Red China and the U.S.S.R." All are invited.

We hope that Loyola's IRC will continue its excellent work in the future and keep the name of Loyola outstanding.

Fr. Daley Speaks On Maryland Day

Loyola College of Baltimore will hold its third annual observance of Maryland Day on Monday, March 25. Members of the faculty, students and their parents, alumni and friends will attend a High Mass, beginning at 9:00 am, at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen. Very Reverend Vincent F. Beatty, S.J., President of Loyola College, will be the celebrant.

The Mass will be offered in memory of Father Andrew White, the Jesuit priest who sailed with Lord Baltimore's founding party in the "Ark and the Dove," and landed at St. Clement's Island (now known as Blackistone's Island) on March 25, 1634.

Very Reverend John M. Daley, S.J., Provincial of the Maryland Province of the Society of Jesus, and former Dean of the Graduate School of Georgetown University, will deliver the sermon. Father

Daley has, for many year, evidenced a scholarly interest in the relationship of the Society of Jesus to the founding of the Maryland colony, and in this connection has written the first volume of the history of Georgetown University.

Loyola College of Baltimore, founded in 1852, is rooted in the Maryland colonial tradition. The Jesuit administrators continue to follow the honored traditions of religious freedom and missionizing zeal of the early Maryland colony.

John Carroll, the first American Bishop, began his early schooling at the academy at Bohemia Manor. Charles Carroll of Carrollton and Francis and Leonard Neale, among many other noted Marylanders, came under the influence of the Jesuits.

Father Beatty has said, "Since Jesuits have been serving Maryland since 1634, it is appropriate that we join the citizens of the Free State in observing the founding of the colony, and we invite all our friends to attend the Mass on Monday morning at the Cathedral."

Rev. John M. Daley, S.J.

Important Announcement

Mr. Frank Moritz, director of admissions will speak at 11:00 a.m. today in Ruzicka Hall on "The Possibility of Graduate School." A question and answer period will follow. All freshmen and sophomores are invited.

At 11:00 this past Wednesday, March 20, Dr. Charles Wilber spoke in Xavier Lounge on "Graduate School Requirements and Opportunities." Dr. Wilber is dean of the Graduate School of Kent State University in Ohio.

Navy Coming

The Aviation Officer Procurement Team from the Naval Air Reserve Training Unity, Naval Air Facility, Andrews, Washington 25, D.C. will visit the campus of Loyola College on March 26, 1963.

Naval aviation has three programs for college men that lead to commissions in the naval service.

Fellowship winner Tom Kenney confers with Tom Cosgrove at ASN meeting.

Editorial:

Maryland Day

As noted elsewhere in this issue, the faculty and students of Loyola College will commemorate Maryland Day next Monday with a special Mass at the Cathedral of Mary Our Queen. It is indeed fitting that we of Loyola should pause once each year to consider our position in time and place. For a college is a paradox; by its very nature a college is an institution which transcends the dimensions of time and place. The theological and philosophical truths taught at Loyola are the same ones taught by the Jesuit fathers long before the landing of "The Ark and the Dove." The problems which puzzle our philosophy students today are the same ones which puzzled Aristotle's students when the Pillars of Hercules were the limits of the world.

But if Loyola transcends time and place, it is also an institution which is peculiarly of THIS time and THIS place. For, if the material of our scholarship is as ancient as Plato and Aristotle it is as modern as yesterday's discoveries in the physical sciences and the latest research in the social sciences. If the men of Loyola are formed in a Catholic tradition which knows no boundaries, most of them will live this tradition in the Maryland community of which Loyola is a part.

ALPHA SIGMA NU'S

All juniors who are thinking of graduate work should not overlook scholarship opportunities offered by non-scholastic institutions. There are five major opportunities: the Rhodes, the Woodrow Wilson, the Fullbright, the National Science Fellowship, and the Danforth.

Descriptions

The Rhodes offers study leading to a degree at Oxford. The applicant should be proficient in some sport. The Wilson donates 1000 scholarships worth $1500 each for one year to the school of the student's choice. The applicant must promise to consider seriously a career as a college teacher. The Wilson Committee discourages science majors from applying.

The Fullbright award is a year of study in a foreign country of the student's selection. The government, the donor of the money, expects the student to be an ambassador from the United States. Knowledge of the language spoken in the country is a requisite.

The science major may apply for a National Science Fellowship, which offers $1800 for one year's study at a college of his choice. The Danforth is the most lucrative of these mentioned as it offers full tuition and board. Only two are selected from Loyola to apply for the Danforth.

Early Preparations

Preparations should be begun now. The student should begin by writing a thesis of approximately 1000 words describing himself and his college life with emphasis on his intellectual achievements. Those desiring the Fullbright should also choose a country and develop a project concerning his major field which he would like to pursue. Furthermore, the student would be wise to acquaint himself with the best writers in his major field, noteworthy philosophical interpretations, and other background material as the interviews often cover these areas.

Faculty Consultants

It is further suggested that students select a school to which they wish to apply and send for an application. If any questions arise, consult Dr. Hands for the Wilson and the Rhodes, Mr. Pritchett for the Fullbright, and Mr. O'Donovan for the Danforth, Dr. Gumnick for the National Science Foundation.

Council Clips

by Bill Scholtes

Last week found the Student Council considering a large number of measures currently standing. Senior Duck Blair, chairman of the Elections Committee, reported the results of the voting on the proposed constitutional amendment reappportioning representatives to our Council. The amendment passed by the very slim margin of one vote. The totals were 110 for and 109 against. Judging by the number of students voting from the various classes, the margin of victory came surprisingly, from the juniors and seniors.

Parking

After some probing by Bob Quirk, it was discovered that, contrary to popular opinion, parking on Milbrook Road is not restricted to seniors after 1:00 p.m., but rather is opened to all students.

Lunch After Mass

The First Friday Mass Committee, which was instituted to determine if it is possible to schedule the First Friday Mass in such a manner as to allow more students to be able to enjoy a more leisurely lunch after Communion, reported back to the Council. Chairman Basil Brown recommended that, although nothing could be done this year, the Administration should schedule two free periods on Friday and one on Wednesday next year in order to accomplish this end.

Advisory Committee

A Music Club Committee, whose chairman is Bill Scholtes and consisting of Paul Montgomery and Bob Quirk, was established to assist the Music Club in creating a new constitution, and assist in developing procedures.

Keating's KEYHOLE

Undeniably, the greatest social problem facing modern American society, and consequently the Catholic Church, is that of racial discrimination. The problem has become particularly acute in Baltimore and in the state of Maryland over the past year.

In Collegiate Community

My concern in relation to this problem is in regard to the Catholic collegiate community. There has been a resounding silence from Catholic college students at a time when fellow non-Catholic students are voicing their opinions not only with words but also deeds.

Active Protest

In this respect, Philip Scharper, recent lecturer at Loyola College, has written "The major moral problem (confronting the country) is the race problem, and there have been rather few organized Catholic protests about the unsavory situations which it produces. I should like just once before I die to see Catholic students, shepherded by their religious teachers, picketing a slum district, bearing placards which read, 'We, Catholic students of this city, publicly protest that here Christ in His brothers is condemned to live like a swine.'"

CYO Resolution

This is not necessarily to say, in agreement with Mr. Scharper, that Catholic college students must publicly demonstrate in protest against racial discrimination. However, they neglect, as future leaders of the Catholic laity, their intellectual and moral responsibilities in maintaining this abject silence. In contrast, the Archdiocesan Youth Council of the CYO has recently adopted a resolution attacking certain segregated places of amusement in the Maryland area. I feel that individual Catholic college students can do as much. The Loyola College panelists who appeared on the show To Promote Good Will are to be congratulated for raising this question. We could follow this lead and give voice against the standing problem.

How Will The Supreme Court Rule On The Murray Case?

I Answer That:

PAGE FRIED, Class of '63: I think that the ruling will go for the state law. Having once been a student in a public high school myself, I found that the pupils could stay for the prayer, or leave. Even if they stayed, they were not forced to participate in the exercise. Nevertheless, if the ruling does favor Mrs. Murray, and the recently discussed "moment of silence" proposal goes into effect, she might have some difficulty in attempting to stop the silence on constitutional grounds.

STANLEY HELLMAN, Class of '66: Basing my decision on the ruling in the New York Regents case, I would say that the Supreme Court will probably support Mrs. Murray's appeal. The Court will not yield in its stand on this issue, or else it will lose much of its prestige.

GERARD HEEGAN, Class of '63: From the position taken in the New York case, it would appear that the Court will rule in favor of Mrs. Murray—that is, the state shall not legislate belief or disbelief in a Supreme Being. Trying to predict the decision of a case before the court is hazardous, to say the least. After argumentation is completed, logic and precedent remain seated in the courtroom.

ROBERT JOHNSTON, Class of '65: I think that the Supreme Court will decide on a prayer which might be said universally in the schools without offending any religious denomination. The prayer will probably sound like this: "We wish to ask guidance and grace of the Lord, our God, the most Supreme Being; OR if He is not a personal God, we wish merely to sanction His existence; OR if He does not exist, we wish to devote this time to acknowledge our disbelief in Him." I don't feel that the word "Amen" will be inserted at the end, since this would slight the beliefs of all the Beatniks living in the United States.

BRUCE HIRSHAUER, Class of '65: In the summer of 1962 the Supreme Court declared the New York public school prayer unconstitutional. As far as I know, the important factor in this decision was that the prayer was composed and imposed by the state. The question now arises whether any prayer can be said in public schools. I think that the Supreme Court will decide that the use of a random selection of prayers in public schools does not violate the Constitution.

CARROLL RANKIN Jr., Class of '63: I think that the Supreme Court will probably rule in favor of Mrs. Murray, since the issue is constitutional and not religious, as many people believe. The problem remaining is: Where does Mrs. Murray go from here?

THE WATCHDOG

Brian Copenhaver, lacrosse team, allowed no goals in practice this week. It seems he just stood there with his mouth open.

Tony Miller is currently known as "The Birdman of Loyola." Our web-footed friend goes about quacking all the time.

Reports from the hospital indicate that Mark Vincent is doing fine recuperating from the surgery he underwent last Tuesday. Mark says that the food isn't bad except for the stuff that they're feeding him.

New Yorkers are very upset now. Their newspapers have been on strike so long. And now all the hotels are threatening the same. The Hotel Roosevelt is initiating the walk-out. It seems they had too much work to do after the weekend.

Track, Net Teams Set

This year the track team has a coaching staff. Bill McElroy has engaged two of his former stars, Tom Kenney and Hank McGraw, to aid him in training the squad.

Work Specialities

Tom and Hank will both be working in their special events. Tom, a veteran of four years of cross-country and three years of track, was captain of the cross-country team last fall. He is the best quarter miler in Loyola history and will be working with the sprinters.

Hank McGraw was a member of the cross-country for three years, and the track team for two seasons.

The former Harford-High standout was one of the major reasons for Loyola's brilliant cross-country records in the years from '59 to '61. Hank will work with the distance men.

Mac feels their assistance will be invaluable because they are both experienced runners, and he will be free to work with the field events, the team's weak spot.

Tennis

Tennis coach Vince Colimore is hoping for good support from the students at his team's opening match against Colgate tomorrow. The powerful Hound netters will start with Russ Tontz, Alex Cummings, Jim Mohler, Dan Michaelis, Louis Albert, and either Barry Tillman or John Malko. The Hounds have never beaten Colgate, but they have a good chance at 2:00 p.m. tomorrow. It should be a close and interesting match.

A good support of Loyola students and a good performance of the team should result in victory.

Tim Pierce Encourages Swimming

Undoubtedly, one of the quietest, least conspicuous, and hardest working men around the gym lockers this past season was Junior Tim Pierce, the efficient manager of the swimming team. A talented swimmer himself, Tim has an extensive background in the sport and brings a long list of credits to his managerial position. Since the age of 14 when he began teaching at the YMCA, Tim has concerned himself with helping other swimmers rather than seeking glory for himself. During the summer he works as a Red Cross swimming instructor and as head life guard at Pine Ridge. Last year he also organized and coached a team of 60 boys and girls, ranging in ages from 6-16. Privately, he now coaches a 15 year old girl who recently set three new Md. YMCA records in her age group.

In Background

At Loyola he has also chosen to place himself in the background. As manager, Tim attends to the many details involved in preparing meets and practices; he is responsible for keeping all pool, team, and conference records. When called upon, he also uses his knowledge of the sport to help the team members.

After he graduates, English major Pierce hopes to become a Student Councilor and swimming coach; but before that time he hopes to help Klarner's boys to another championship.

Swimming Manager Pierce handles some paperwork.

Rifle Team Coach, Sgt. Funke.

Riflemen Triumph

After a three week lay-off, Loyola was the host to Johns Hopkins Rifle team last Thursday. Loyola extended every hospitality to the neighbors on Charles Street, but did not allow the Jays the privilege of victory, as the home team won 1389-1381, thus maintaining an unbeaten streak extending from March of '62.

Big Victory

As far as the team was concerned, this was THE match of the year. Before this match, Loyola and Hopkins were tied for the Maryland State Army ROTC Tournament with one match remaining in the Tournament, that being Western Maryland. Scorers in the Hopkins match were Nooney-284, Yox-282, Williams-276, Coleman-274, and O'Neill-273. Nooney's score was close to his team high of 286.

Baseball Hampered; Stickmen Scrimmage

Wet grounds forced "Lefty" Reitz to continue baseball drills indoors last week, and consequently he has had little opportunity to evaluate the newcomers. Several problems are evident, however, before the first diamond session is held. A right handed pitcher is needed for a staff rich in southpaws. Harold Murry, a hard thrower from Loyola High, could alleviate this problem if he lives up to expectations. Lacy and Phil Middleton are other hopefuls.

Pressure will fall on the pitching staff and the defense to compensate for a glaring lack of power. Bill Heidel is counted on to return to the form he displayed early last season at the plate. Bob Rossi produced when it counted, knocking in a team leading thirteen runs. Charlie O'Donnell's return should bolster the outfield corps.

Lacrossers Beaten by Maryland

Two weeks ago Charlie Wenzel took his lacrosse team to Maryland, and came home satisfied, despite a 12-2 loss. Although the Hounds have been hampered by a lack of outdoor practice, they functioned well as a unit against a very tough team. They encountered their greatest difficulty in clearing the ball. When Marty Schnuit and Page Fried gain experience at their new positions, and join with Tom Milligan, the defense should improve. Other candidates for the defensive positions are Brian Hickey, Jack Schaefer, Bill McGinnis, and Gary Heubeck.

Goalie

Although no one will challenge Harry Bregel for the goalie job, Coach Wenzel has spunky Brian Copenhaver, a willing and spirited learner, presently working at that position.

Brian will function as the number two goalie behind Bregel.

Intramurals

by Phil Pierpont

The intramural standings were slightly altered during last week's competition. Sam and Friends, who had undisputed possession of first place for three weeks, are now tied with the Sharks and Foul Line Five for first at 11-1. Sam's boys dropped one of three games to Charlie Nemecsek's Bombers, while their rivals swept their matches.

Sharks Win

The Sharks won by forfeit over the Wild Ones on the way to their share of first place. The Fouliners overpowered the No Counts despite the efforts of Dwight Carneal, who established a new high game, 168, and set, 426, to erase the previous high of John Morrissey of the Bombers. The standings will change again this week as the Sharks and Foul Line 5's meet in an effort to lower the boom on each other.

O'Henries Bowl

The O'Henries, who totaled three more in their win column via the blind route, will have their hands full this week as they take on Sam and Friends. The Bombers have a blind this week, while the No Counts are scheduled to face the Wild Ones.

Softball Deadline

Today is the last day for submitting entries for the softball intramurals which begin next week. Entries of 12 man teams may be submitted to Nap Doherty.

Senior Sports Spotlight

Since Loyola is a relatively small college in relation to the schools against whom it competes athletically, it has been the nature of the Evergreen athletic program to make good athletes of men who have never competed before in certain sports on a scholastic level. Brian "Buck" McCarthy is such an individual. He has risen from novice ranks in his freshman year to claim second place in the Mason Dixon Wrestling Tournament for the 1962-3 season.

Buck inaugurated his Loyola sports career in Cross-Country as a Freshman and continued until his Junior year. His wrestling efforts have spanned four years culminating in the captaincy of the team and an impressive 6-1 season record.

McCarthy's first year as a wrestler was the team's first season in M-D competition since the reorganization of the team in 1957. His growth as a wrestler has reflected the growth of the team. Each year his won-lost tally has improved. His grappling career is a graphic expression of the fact that in a school like Loyola hard practice and aggressiveness can overcome a lack of experience.

Buck McCarthy
